The well-known and respected founder of Kintronic Labs, Louis Arthur King, passed away on Sunday morning, November 1st, 2009 at Bristol Wellmont in Bristol, TN. He was 94 years of age.

During his professional career spanning a period of 45 years, Louis King, PE, distinguished himself as an inventor, an educator, a broadcast consultant, and a corporate entrepreneur in the field of radio broadcast antenna systems.

Louis King

King was born Jan. 1, 1915 in Bristol, TN, the son of Arthur and Geneva King.

Following graduation with a BSEE from UT Knoxville in 1938 and MSEE from the University of Missouri in 1940, he taught electrical engineering at Clemson College in Greenville, South Carolina. There he developed the Radio Engineering curriculum, which later formed the foundation for the communications courses presently offered at what is now Clemson University.

In 1945 he was hired by the Radio Corporation of America (RCA) in Camden, NJ as a radio transmitter design engineer. During his time there, he received five U.S. Patents.

In 1949 he returned to Bristol at which time he obtained a PE license in TN and VA and set up operations in his father, Arthur's, office space on Shelby Street as a broadcast consulting engineer. In the early 50's, he started manufacturing radio broadcast equipment while continuing his consulting practice. The manufacturing business was later named Kintronic Laboratories and was incorporated in 1984.

Under the guiding vision of Mr. King, who gave credit to The Lord for his achievements, Kintronic Labs grew to be a world leader with products in over 100 countries. As a result of his many contributions to radio broadcasting, Mr. King was recognized by the National Association of Broadcasters in 2007 as the recipient of the NAB Lifetime Radio Engineering Achievement Award. Later that same year, King College honored Mr. King with an honorary Doctor of Laws Degree at their first winter commencement.

In 2008 the National Religious Broadcasters presented Mr. King with their first Impact Award, recognizing Mr. King's behind-the-scenes support of Christian radio around the world.

Mr. King was a lifelong member of First Presbyterian Church where he was an elder emeritus, and was a member of the Bristol Rotary Club for over 40 years.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by his wife, Elizabeth H. "Libby" King, on Dec. 1, 2004, following 60 wonderful years of marriage. He was also preceded in death by his sister, Katherine King Adamson.
